Some of the masterpieces of ancient Greek sculpture were made with this pure white, translucent material. The statues of Hermes by Praxiteles, Venus de Milo (i.e. Aphrodite of Milos) & Nike [Winged Victory] of Samothrace hosted in the Louvre Museum.

A romantic wedding scene at night. A groom in a white shirt and dark vest is lighting a large, glowing heart-shaped lantern. A bride in a white dress and floral crown stands next to him, holding a bouquet of flowers. Other guests are visible in the background, some also holding lanterns. The scene is set outdoors with a view of a town's lights reflected in water in the distance.
